THE INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY IN SUIT AND TRAININGMASK'S BUSINESS

8. Danford owns United States patents that are licensed to TrainingMask including:

- U.S. Patent No. 9,067,086, "High Performance Ventilatory Training Mask Incorporating Multiple and Adjustable Air Admittance Valves for Replicating Various Encountered Altitude Resistances" duly issued on June 30, 2015 (Exhibit A); and
- U.S. Patent No. 8,590,533, "Adjustable Inhalation Resistance Exercise Device" duly issued on November 26, 2013 (Exhibit B).

9. TrainingMask owns numerous registered U.S. trademarks, including, but not limited to:

- ELEVATION TRAINING MASK®, U.S. Trademark Registration No. 4,094,823 duly registered on January 31, 2012 (Exhibit C);

- ELEVATION TRAINING MASK & Design®, U.S. Trademark Registration No. 4,508,962 duly registered on April 8, 2014 (Exhibit D);
- SIMULATE HIGH ALTITUDE TRAINING®, U.S. Trademark Registration No. 4,594,596 duly registered on August 26, 2014 (Exhibit E); and
- TRAINING MASK SIMULATES HIGH ALTITUTED TRAINING & Design®, U.S. Trademark Registration No. 4,509,398 duly registered on April 8, 2014 (Exhibit F).

10. TrainingMask develops and sells athletic training products that embody the inventions claimed in the patents identified above (Exhibits A and B).

11. TrainingMask marks its website, its products, and its associated product packaging and inserts with the above-identified trademarks as well. TrainingMask internationally markets and sells its products and uses all of the identified marks. Due to extensive commercial use of the aforesaid marks, TrainingMask has established valuable trademark rights in its marks, goodwill in the marketplace, and extensive recognition of the marks by consumers, all of which represent a highly valuable asset to TrainingMask.

12. TrainingMask also owns copyrighted material in the form of text, photos, graphics, and other content displayed on its website, www.trainingmask.com and elsewhere.

13. Shown below are examples of TrainingMask's patented products, as well as the association of such products with TrainingMask's trademarks.

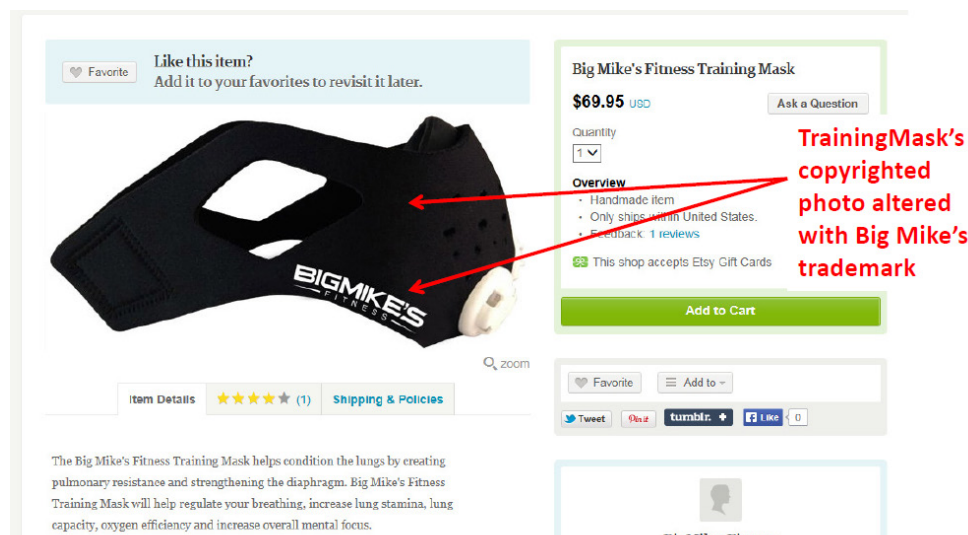

14. TrainingMask is an industry leader for these products which simulate conditions of high altitude for training athletes.

15. TrainingMask recently became aware that the defendants are re-branding TrainingMask's products and selling the infringing goods through various mediums.

16. Upon information and belief, true and accurate photos of defendants' "Big Mike' Fitness Training Mask" product are attached hereto as Exhibit G.

17. Defendants' counterfeit products can be purchased on its website, www.bigmikesfitness.com, on Amazon, and Etsy.

18. The below annotated images from sales postings on defendants' website and Etsy show that defendants are taking TrainingMask's copyrighted photos of its products, editing out TrainingMask's trademark, inserting digitally their own Big Mike's Fitness name and design, and attempting to sell the re-branded product as their own:

19. Defendants have misappropriated TrainingMask's products by removing TrainingMask's sleeves and replacing them with defendants' counterfeit sleeves, which are identical in structure and function to TrainingMask's sleeves (see Exhibit G).

20. Defendants' counterfeit sleeves contain the BIG MIKE'S FITNESS and BM names thereon for the purpose of passing off TrainingMask's products as their own.

21. Further evidencing the counterfeit nature of defendants' products, a purchased Big Mike's Fitness mask, depicted below, includes TrainingMask's signature ELEVATION TRAINING MASK & Design trademark on the mask valve.

22. Defendants are also misappropriating TrainingMask's trade dress, product packaging, and associated product inserts. In this regard, defendants are selling and shipping its counterfeit products within TrainingMask's own packaging and with TrainingMask's associated product inserts (e.g., the injury waiver and release of liability card), all of which includes TrainingMask's corporate name, address, website, and trademarks (see Exhibit H).

23. It is clear that the defendants are advertising and selling products that infringe TrainingMask's and Danford's identified intellectual property rights. Moreover, by counterfeiting TrainingMask's products, the defendants are engaging in unfair and illegal business practices that must be stopped immediately.

24. On July 31, 2015, TrainingMask, through its lawyers, sent a demand letter to defendant My Corp. and Big Mike's Fitness at two addresses, requesting that their infringing activities come to a halt. TrainingMask's attorneys also called the defendants to further elaborate on the misconduct. Defendants failed to respond to TrainingMask's letter and phone calls.
